For Vice-President.

FIRST DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

CINCINNATI, O., June 14.-The sixth National Convention of the Republican party met at noon to-day. The attendance greater than that at any previous gathering of the party. It embraces the most noted men in its ranks, who either sat upon the floor as delegates or as the guests of honor upon the raised piatform in rear of the presiding officer, to those who had attended the convention held four years ago in Philadelphia. The colored delegates who are present, caused some surprise; among them were Congressmen and ex-Con-gressmen from South Carolina, Alabama and

The delegates were admirably grouped upon the floor facing the stage. The posi-tion of each delegation is indicated by a card fixed upon a pole and bearing the name of its State.

The pressure for tickets of admission has been fearful, and the dissatisfaction is general, especially among newspaper men, whose proper claims have been steadily ig-nored by the local committee. Ample as the building is, it could be filled thrice over if all applicants for entrance had been gratified. As the hour for the beginning of proceedings drew near the rush grew more d more intense, and at a few minutes to 12 the aisles were jammed, and the rush and bustle of the crowd could be heard even above the clanging of the brass bands. The balconies upon either side and at the rear of the hall are occupied by a miscellane ous crowd. The posts and arches supporting the roof are decorated with the national prayer; after which Gov. Morgan address-ed the Convention, and in the course of his tion, in 1864, it was modestly suggested by the chairman of the national committee whole duty unless, among its other resolves. it should declare for such an amendment to the National Constitution as would, when adopted, forever prohibit African slavery

The resolution to secure this, was written in the party platform, and both Houses of Congress soon after passed the required amendment. Now, with like modesty, I make a suggestion or two, bear-ing directly on the present. This Convenand efficient execution of the solemn prom-ises of both Houses of Congress and the der obligations of the Government, on the opposition to any modification or repeal of this law, that does not guarantee a still ear-convention upon the subject of honest resolutions and platforms a little longer and your currency basis will be transformed that you will be yourselves surprised, regretting only, as you will, that it was not determined upon at an earlier day. If you will, in addition, put a plank in your platthe Constitution as will extend the Presi dential office to six years, and make the incumbent ineligible for re-election, you will deserve the gratitude of the American our party have had indicated to them in advance the names of the candidates for little else than ratification meetings of the decrees that have been made by the people, merely putting in form that which had al-ready been decided upon. But such a appears to be no man rising so far above all others as to cause exultant voices to exfore, there are greater responsibilities resting upon the delegates to this

The proceedings of the Convention wer marked by that harmony and good nature which generally distinguish the prelimin ry sessions of any political organization.
